They sailed south with the monsoon in winter or early spring, and back again to Arabia in late spring or early summer. The term "Dhow" is also applied to small, traditionally constructed vessels used for trade in the Red Sea and the Persian Gulf area and the Indian Ocean from Madagascar to the Gulf of Bengal. Such vessels typically weigh 300 to 500 tons, and have a long, thin hull design. Also, it is a family of early Arab ships. Nowadays, many modern dhows are fitted with diesel engines and have air conditioning as well. Cruising down Dubai creek is a novel experience, one which you cannot miss when in Dubai.
